Max began pupillage in 2022. He has a broad interest in all chambers' areas of expertise and is currently being supervised by Philip McCormack, specialising in public children law.

Max read Law at the University of Cambridge and completed the BPTC at City, University of London, before being called to the Bar in 2021. During his studies, Max volunteered at Advocate and Liberty and represented clients in the First-tier Tribunal with the Free Representation Unit. Since graduating, he has amassed a broad range of litigation experience, working for a leading international law firm and two boutique litigation specialists.
